NAADAC, the Association for Addiction Professionals, has opened the nomination process for its 2007 awards. Celebrating best practices for over 25 years, NAADAC's awards were established to identify and honor the outstanding work of addiction services professionals and organizations that treat addiction.

NAADAC has recognized the best practices of addiction professionals since 1979, when it established the Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Counselor of the Year Award (since re-named the Lora Roe Memorial Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Counselor of the Year Award).

The first winners of the Lora Roe Award, the Counselors of the U.S. Navy alcoholism and drug abuse program, came to prominence after the U.S. Department of Defense revised its policies to encourage voluntary identification and enrollment of those with addictions in treatment programs.

The Navy's program was the first non-punitive military rehabilitation programs developed with a focus on treatment. The program treated addiction as a disease and ensured that those who volunteered for treatment could not be discharged under other than honorable conditions. The Department of Defense's change in policy, and the quality work of the counselors of the U.S. Navy, are part of the foundation of the modern addiction services profession.

Over 80 groups, individuals and organizations have received recognition from NAADAC since 1979. This is very select company considering the over 8,000 individual and organizational members belonging to NAADAC.

If you know of a person or a program deserving accolades, please consider a nomination for one of NAADAC's six awards.

Nominations for the 2007 awards must be received by the NAADAC Awards Committee no later than April 30, 2007
