

The opportunity to help with the NAADAC PAC is a very exciting endeavor for me. It represents an opportunity to help raise funds that will greatly assist Congressional efforts to advance the cause of addiction prevention and treatment services in the United States.

Donations to the PAC translate into more educational opportunities geared toward Congress learning about the critical services our professionals provide in the way of prevention and treatment initiatives. Congressional appropriations ultimately translate into delivery of services to those Americans who suffer from the consequences of Addictive Disorders. As the only federal political action committee dedicated exclusively toward furthering both prevention and treatment research as well as services, I feel it is important that every member of NAADAC play a role not only by donating but becoming an active citizen advocate.

In order to succeed - we need to make our voice heard in Washington. The PAC represents a great way toward meeting this profoundly important objective.

Sincerely,
Kevin Large, MAC, CADAC II
