Reasons Why Employers Support Membership in NAADAC:

- The more voices (members) NAADAC has, the larger the groundswell of people NAADAC and providers have to advocate for coverage and reimbursement for the diseases of addiction.
- Organizational membership in NAADAC provides access to onsite training for employers that meets their training needs and meets state and national certification/licensure requirements at an affordable cost.
- Organizational members receive a consistent message to policy and opinion-makers about the need for both private sector reimbursements and public sector funding for treatment, prevention, intervention and recovery support.
- NAADAC provides a discount to members on liability insurance and affordable access to individual liability insurance.
- Membership in NAADAC provides opportunities to take a leadership role in the national association and state affiliates. There are opportunities for skill-building and leadership development through NAADAC both for front-line as well as executive clinical staff.
- NAADAC focuses on workforce development in two ways: by providing resources and standards to help members of the workforce become or remain qualified to do their job, and to look towards developing a future workforce. Some initiatives in this area include the development of a career ladder, a student outreach committee and looking for funding for mentorship programs which help new counselors learn from senior clinicians.
