Welcome to Minneapolis and the 2016 NAADAC Annual Conference

Embracing Today, Empowering Tomorrow
NAADAC Session Rooms

SECOND LEVEL MEETING ROOMS

MAIN LEVEL MEETING ROOMS
As NAADAC President, I, the Minnesota Addiction Professionals (MNAP), and NAADAC's partners welcome you to the 2016 NAADAC Annual Conference: Embracing Today, Empowering Tomorrow. We are thrilled to be holding our conference in Minneapolis.

This conference not only includes a strong lineup of keynote and plenary speakers, but also a multitude of workshops with the latest innovations, best practices, trends and issues that impact all addiction-focused professionals, address challenges, and advances the treatment of addiction and substance use disorders. I'm confident you'll have an outstanding learning experience and encourage you to share your experience through social media and your networks.

The conference isn't all about learning, however. It is also about networking and having fun! As in the past, we will be recognizing contributions to the addiction profession and outstanding achievement efforts at our awards luncheon. You'll have plenty of time to network during breaks in the Exhibit Hall, at the Student, New Member, and Opening Receptions, at the President’s Awards Luncheon, during early morning exercises, and at Movie Night. I also encourage you to come to the NAADAC Education & Research Foundation (NERF) Auction on Sunday night for music and fun, all while supporting all of the important work funded by NERF. It is open to all!

The Exhibit Hall features over 75 exhibitors showcasing products, services, and resources. Attendees have the opportunity to win prizes from exhibitors and NAADAC through its Exhibitor Passport game.

The NAADAC Executive Committee and Board of Directors will be conducting business meetings during the conference and will be available to you to help with any issues you may have. Please feel free to approach any of us while at the conference. As President, I personally hope to meet as many of you as possible and learn what the needs are in your home states.

In closing, I want to thank all of the wonderful sponsors and partners for their support in this year's conference. We couldn't have put it together without you and I hope to meet with as many of you as possible. Please visit the exhibit hall and give them your thanks and appreciation as well.

I also want to thank Executive Director Cynthia Moreno Tuohy and the NAADAC staff for all of their hard work in putting this conference together on top of their already busy demands at the NAADAC office. I thoroughly hope you enjoy Minneapolis and the Conference!

Annual Conference Continuing Education Certificates and Evaluations

To apply for your continuing education credits, please go online to www.naadac.org/ac16-ce-information.

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Track attended sessions: In the attendee packet of information, a paper form has been provided for all attendees to keep track of their session attendance by writing down the specific word announced at the beginning and end of each session. Without this word, attendees will be unable to receive credit for the session attended. Please note, session tracking is solely the responsibility of the attendee, and NAADAC cannot be held responsible for this information. Missed words will not be given out after the session. Please make sure you know the word before leaving the end of the session.

2. Enter attendance info online: Sign-in to your NAADAC profile by visiting www.naadac.org and clicking on the Member Sign-In button in the upper right-hand corner of the screen. Please be sure to use the same sign-in information used to register for the conference. If you are unable to remember your sign-in information, please use the retrieval link on the sign-in page. Please contact NAADAC at naadac@naadac.org or call 800.548.0497 for assistance.

Once you have successfully logged in, click on the My Quizzes link on your landing page. Follow the links to the 2016 Conference Evaluations. Locate and click on the name of the annual conference educational session you attended from the list, then enter the word of the session to verify your attendance.

By completing the evaluations for a CE certificate, you are attesting to attending the associated educational session at the NAADAC Annual Conference. Applying for CE credit for an educational session you did not attend is an ethical violation and NAADAC will pursue offenders.

Press “Start.”

3. Complete each evaluation question based on your experience during the educational session.

After all evaluation questions are complete, your CE certificate for the educational session will appear automatically for you to print now or save for later, and a copy will be emailed to you automatically.

Repeat the steps for each educational session attended to obtain all earned CEs for the NAADAC Annual Conference.

Please note only NAADAC CE credit is available for Poster Sessions located on page 12 of the program. See page 12 for instructions on how to claim CE credit for Poster Sessions.

Application of Dialectical Behavioral Therapy to Substance Use & Mental Health Disorders

CE Credits: 7

Kevin McCauley, MD and Eric Schmidt, MBA, MSW

The presenters will host an interactive presentation about Dialectical Behavioral Therapy and its application to clients with co-occurring mental health and substance use disorders. Attendees will learn the clinical attributes of clients with dual-diagnosis, including behavioral and neurological etiology. Participants will learn and observe a role-play of a DBT strategy, validation, and will receive an overview of contingency strategies. A large amount of the presentation will be a demonstration of one of the five core modes of DBT, the Consultation Team. This will include a DBT mindfulness exercise and videos of an actual Consultation Team meeting, allowing the attendees to observe the actual application to DBT. The presenters will highlight the role of neuropathology in BPD symptomatology throughout the lecture.

Understanding Marijuana: Pharmacology and New Findings

CE Credits: 7

Darryl S. Inaba, PharmD, CATC V, CADC III

A growing body of medical evidence demonstrates marijuana (THC) in its current highly potent, newer concentrated forms (“edibles” and “BHO”), and especially the new synthetic cannabinoids (“Spice”), results in major medical and mental health problems. Evidence of increased risks for psychosis, schizophrenia, heart attacks, seizures, hyperemesis syndrome, decreased IQ, and even testicular cancer has been associated with cannabis abuse. This session will look at marijuana as a drug, current findings of its effects, new forms of abuse, its botany, chemistry, and pharmacology, and its major effects on the brain and body.

SATURDAY NIGHT EVENTS

Register for Saturday Evening Events at the Registration Desk. Tours have limited space!

StepUP Tour
Augsburg College is home to the StepUP Program, one of the largest and most well-established collegiate recovery programs in the nation. With over 100 students, StepUP consists of both a residential program and a team of licensed counselors to support our students in their recovery, academics, and personal life. Attendees will visit Oren Gateway Center, home to both elements of the program, and enjoy a delicious catered dinner while discovering more about what recovery looks like in a college environment.

Hazelden Center City Tour
Please join Hazelden Betty Ford Foundation for an exclusive program and tour of Hazelden’s Center City, MN campus for NAADAC conference attendees. Attendees will hear from Hazelden Betty Ford experts about the latest research and evidence-based practices and be led on a tour of the campus. Dinner and transportation to/from the Hyatt Regency are provided. Register now as space is limited.

5:30 pm – Shuttle busses begin boarding at hotel
7:00 pm – Dinner, Program, and Tours begin
10:00 pm – Expected arrival back at hotel

Movie Night: How I Got Over
How I Got Over follows 15 formerly homeless and/or incarcerated women as they craft an original play, based on their harrowing true-life stories, to be performed one night only at The Kennedy Center. As observers of their creative process, viewers bear witness to their transformations from victim to artist, and to the performing arts’ capacity to heal trauma, create connection, and start a conversation.

With the nation’s capital as a fitting backdrop, How I Got Over was filmed in and around N Street Village — a Washington, D.C. temporary housing facility for low income and homeless women — during the program’s 12-week collaboration with Theatre Lab’s program Life Stories.

Acceptance & Commitment Therapy, EMDR and EFT Tapping for Treatment of Chronic Pain

TRACK: Clinical Skills CE Credits: .25
Michael G. Bricker, MS, CADC II, LPC

This poster presentation describes the combined usefulness of Acceptance & Commitment Therapy (ACT), Resource Tapping (an EMDR technique), and EFT Tapping (from Thought Field Therapy) to help patients with chronic pain. These interventions are evidence-based practices for both chronic physical pain and “diffuse pain syndromes” more often associated with MH disorders. Traditional medical interventions for all these disorders often rely on medications which predispose persons in recovery to relapse. Laurel Parnell’s Resource Tapping technique requires no formal training, and can effectively be taught to counselors and clients. EFT Tapping is a widely available resource that can be self-taught and self-administered, thus empowering clients to become active partners in their own healing.

Feedback Informed Treatment – How To Monitor For Improvement, Deterioration, And Stagnation

TRACK: Co-Occurring Disorders CE Credits: .25
Michael McGuire, LCSW, LMFT, LCAS, CCS-I

In counseling, how do individual therapists know what they’re doing is helping the client? How do supervisors monitor for effective treatment? And how does an agency ensure clinical success? Selecting an evidence-based treatment model is not enough. We have to know if the client in front of us is making progress, staying the same, or getting worse. Feedback Informed Treatment (FIT) is an empirically supported, pantheoretical approach for evaluating and improving the quality and effectiveness of behavioral health services. It involves routinely and formally soliciting feedback from clients regarding the therapeutic alliance and outcome of care and using the resulting information to inform and tailor service delivery.

Effectiveness of Military-Themed Treatment Programs: A Meta-Analysis of Predictors of Success

TRACK: Cultural Humility CE Credits: .25
Elizabeth Donnellan, Med, ABD, FT

Veterans diagnosed with SUD are often treated in military themed programs offered either by the VA or by military base staff. These programs are not always effective for veterans since triggers for substance use are related to their military memories or attitude towards their service time. This meta-analysis explores whether there are specific characteristics (e.g., motivation) that can be used to screen veterans entering programs to determine whether they best fit with a military or non-military themed treatment program. The outcomes of this study can be used for further research into the creation of a screening model.

Approximately 6% of the population suffers from a severe alcohol use disorder. They and their loved ones will experience devastating consequences. Most traditional treatments are geared for their recovery, yet there are over 90 million people that have a gap in services. They will avoid getting help for fear of being labeled alcoholic, forced into treatment, made to attend 12-step meetings, and told to stop drinking completely. We need to find ways to help this large number of alcohol users who are not experiencing addiction, but may be dealing with a mild or moderate alcohol use disorder. This presentation will teach you about a controversial emerging treatment option: moderation.

Using CBT To Treat Clients Suffering From Substance Use Disorder In An Opioid Treatment Program

TRACK: Recovery Support CE Credits: .25
Rev. Livinus Uba, LCADC, LICDC, ICADC, MAC

Cognitive behavioral therapeutic approaches (Beck, 2004) are employed to treat substance use disorder clients in an opioid treatment program. The use of opioids has escalated dramatically over the past 25 years with unbelievable human and financial tolls to individuals, families, and the entire nation (Betty Ford Foundation, Policy Statement, 2013), with chilling and sobering statistics, what Centers for Disease Control (CDC, 2012) declared the “worst drug addiction epidemic in United States history.” Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) in 2012 reported a 500% increase in admissions for prescription drug disorders since 2001. CBT works to change learned behavior by changing thinking patterns, beliefs and perceptions.

Let’s Compliment, Not Compete: How Addiction Counselors Can Embrace Recovery Support Specialists
TRACK: RECOVERY SUPPORT  CE CREDITS: 1.5
Sherri Layton, LCDC, CCS, MBA
Peer Recovery Support Specialists can play a key role in providing assistance to those in early recovery. Peer support has been used alongside mental health services for many years. Addiction treatment has long recognized the value of peer support found in 12-step fellowships, but formal utilization is relatively new and has generally developed separate from treatment programs. Addiction treatment professionals can enhance their clients’ opportunities for success by embracing Peer Recovery Support Specialists and fully understanding the valuable services they bring to the continuum of care.

Clinical supervisors function as consultants, teachers, coaches and mentors to their supervisees. Quality supervision can have a positive impact on client retention and can improve morale and retention of counseling staff. Whether clinical supervisors work alongside clinicians with less training and experience or provide independent supervision outside the workplace, opportunities for modeling and learning abound! This session will provide a basic overview of the literature, examine common factors and involve participants in developing justification for ongoing clinical supervision.

This presentation offers an interdisciplinary approach to addiction treatment, utilizing spiritual principles from the Perennial Traditions of the world in conversation with contemporary secularist trends in Western culture. The 2015 Pew Research Group Report reveals that “millennials” (20–35 year olds) are less likely to consider religion/spirituality as an important part of their lives. Join an atheist journalist and theologian counselor as they team up to consider and critique today’s mutual-aid societies and modality. Built from 1939 blue prints, does the 12-Step model cope with the stress and demands of today’s multicultural cyber-native addicts/alcoholics? Can this secularist and theologian find a common language to describe their 12-Step experiences?

Addiction Studies Programs: Establishing Competency in Education of Addiction Counselors
TRACK: EDUCATION/INCASE  CE CREDITS: 1.5
Sandra Valente, PhD, LADC, LPC, CCS
This presentation will describe an Addiction Studies program, as well as specific course assignments that promote addiction counseling competencies (TAP 21). Issues associated with “gatekeeping” for counselor educators will be addressed. Strategies for gatekeeping in the admissions process will be discussed, as well as handling cases where students not accepted into the program challenged the decision. Best practices for supervision of addiction counseling interns will be addressed, along with challenges and solutions that arise with students, facilities and the college. Follow through with certification/licensure upon graduation can be challenging when students are reliant on financial aid to complete their classes. What can we do to improve the addiction counseling workforce?

The Gender Factor in Addiction Prevalence, Assessment, and Treatment
TRACK: CLINICAL SKILLS  CE CREDITS: 1.5
An-Pyng Sun, PhD, LCSW
Men and women are different biologically, psychologically, and socially; such distinctions are relevant to understanding how various behaviors and diseases differ between the sexes, including addiction and its treatment. Utilizing current empirical research findings, this presentation will: (1) introduce the prevalence gaps between men and women regarding the various types of substance and process addictions, as well as the impact of social change, age, and culture on such prevalence gaps; (2) explain the different natures and etiologies of both substance and process addictions between men and women; and (3) discuss the principles and guidelines for gender-sensitive and gender-specific addiction assessment and treatment.

First the individual must heal, then the family can begin to heal, then the community can start to heal, and then the nation can heal. The presenter will introduce the concept of Wellbriety (sobriety/wellness) as balance and connection to the natural laws that create healing. Culturally based tools will be discussed as ways to heal families. A combination of immense losses and traumatic events that have perpetrated within the culture need to be healed as natives across the nation are encouraged to reinstate cultural ways, language and sacred traditions. The unfortunate consequences of trauma include not believing you have a future, difficulties within families, and a distrust of the outside world which is passed down throughout each generation. On-Line Fieldwork Supervision Using Powell’s Four FOCI of Supervision
Eileen O’Mara, EdD, LADC, NCC
This presentation uses Powell’s Theory of Clinical Supervision (1993) in an online environment. The four foci create a structure that defines students, site supervisors and faculty responsibilities. Administration structure incorporates school, accreditation, and licensure requirements. Evaluation includes on-line rubrics/forms completed by the site supervisor and the faculty supervisor with the student so that strengths and challenges are understood and used as a goal setting tool. Clinical growth includes resolution of counter-transference between student and supervisor, as well as client and counselor. Goal setting based on observation and evaluative tools enhances the foci. Techniques for creating a supportive on-line environment will be presented.

Clinical Intuition in Alcohol and Drug Counseling
TRACK: CLINICAL SKILLS  CE CREDITS: 1.5
Zachary Hansen, EdD, LADC, NCC
Clinical intuition is a commonly experienced phenomenon among mental health and addiction counselors. However, it is not often overtly addressed in counselor education and training. By integrating theory, neuroscience, and research findings, this presentation will provide an overview of clinical intuition. Then research-based best practice recommendations will be highlighted to provide participants with guidelines to effectively utilize clinical intuition in their work. The presenter will integrate findings from his phenomenological research on clinical intuition among alcohol and drug counselors to provide clinically relevant examples and recommendations.

Pain Management in Clients with Co-Occurring Depression and Substance Use Disorder
TRACK: CO-OCCLUDING DISORDERS  CE CREDITS: 1.5
Billy Heckle, RPh, CAC II
Dealing with chronic pain syndrome is tricky to start with, but when you add depression and/or substance use disorder, things get very complicated. This presentation involves a discussion of the many variables that need to be considered by all the parties involved. This includes the client, addiction counselors, mental health and medical professionals, and, of course, family members. These problems can be treated effectively with proper monitoring and education. Medications and therapies used to treat these conditions will be discussed along with their respective pros and cons.

Addressing the Challenges: Brain Injury and Substance Use Disorders
TRACK: CO-OCCLUDING DISORDERS  CE CREDITS: 1.5
Annette Pearson, MS, LADC, CBIS
Brain Injury is the second most common disability in the U.S., affecting over 8.3 million people, second only to depression. The correlation between chemical health addiction, high risk behavior, and brain injury is becoming more apparent. In this session, we will explore the challenges that individuals with brain injury and addiction face. We will gain an understanding of how brain development, chemical changes in the brain, and addiction work together to exacerbate issues around and create challenges in providing treatment that is effective for these individuals. Proven effective tools and strategies for group and individual sessions will be discussed, including looking at individual learning styles and 12-step programs.

What About Men? The Forgotten Gender in Trauma Informed Addiction Care
TRACK: CULTURAL HUMILITY  CE CREDITS: 1.5
Chris Darval, MSW, LCSDCS, LCPD, ICADC
Research indicates that approximately 70% of people in addiction treatment programs are men, and of these men, over 60% report at least one traumatic experience in their lifetimes. Traditional trauma informed addiction treatment models were originally designed for use with women and simply changing the pronouns does not respond to the unique experience and challenges of treating men’s trauma. With this in mind, how many addiction professionals are being trained to effectively work with men and trauma? Many addiction professionals may be unintentionally re-traumatizing male participants, thereby increasing their risk of failure in the program. This presentation offers practical guidance and tools for addiction professionals working with men for navigating these challenging areas.
AFTERNOON KEYNOTE: Post-Traumatic Growth: Strategies in Dealing with Complicated Grief in Treatment and Recovery

Rokelle Lerner

Grieving the loss of dreams and the building and creating of new dreams are an integral part of recovery. Post-traumatic growth includes investigating hidden positive feelings, such as hope, pleasure, strength or forgiveness that, for many reasons, our patients are not comfortable “holding” or trusting. The goal in post-traumatic growth is not to “get rid” of pain but rather to help our clients develop the skills to be able carry the weight of his or her his distress so that relapse can be averted. This lecture will focus on techniques that will help guide the patient through loss and will offer strategies that will promote post-traumatic growth.

What’s the Big Deal About ROSC & What Does it Mean for the Addiction Professional?
TRACK: RECOVERY SUPPORT  CE CREDITS: 1.5
Lonnetta Albright, BS, CPEC
Recovery-oriented systems of care (ROSC) are networks of indigenous and professional services and relationships that can support the long-term behavioral health (SUD and MH) recovery, resilience and wellness of individuals, families and communities. The “system” in ROSC is not a federal, state or local agency, but a macro-level organization of the larger cultural and community environment in which long-term recovery is nested. This workshop will present and clarify two very distinct but complementary roles, that of the professional provider of treatment services and that of the peer providing recovery support services.

The Physiology and Clinical Applications of Cannabinoids in Harm Reduction
TRACK: PSYCHOPHARMACOLOGY  CE CREDITS: 1.5
Dustin Sulak, DO
The endocannabinoid system (ECS) is a homeostatic regulator in the central nervous system that is intimately involved in motivation for natural rewards, modulation of the rewarding effects of addictive drugs, stress responsiveness, and synaptic plasticity. Disruptions of the ECS are associated with behavioral and physiologic changes that influence vulnerability to addiction. This presentation will review the neurophysiology of endocannabinoid signaling related to addiction and abstinence, the preclinical and clinical evidence on the use of exogenous cannabinoids in harm reduction, and clinical considerations in the use of pharmaceutical and herbal cannabinoids in the treatment of addiction.

Practicality, usefulness, and innovation are the themes of this fast moving session. Participants will select persons with substance use disorders with whom they wish to deal with more effectively and simulate the issues experienced in recovery. The leader will illustrate counseling skills that focus on the WDEP system of reality therapy. Included will be recent advances, such as the use of paradoxical techniques and five techniques for helping clients evaluate the effectiveness of their own behaviors. Also emphasized will be specific skills for assisting clients with substance use disorders to clarify what they want from their families, careers, and recovery programs, and to evaluate the realistic attainability of their goals. Participants will receive handouts that can be duplicated for use with co-workers.

The use of opiate substances has increased markedly in the past decade with a concomitant increase in premature death from overdose. While the media frequently reports on the personal and societal impact of this so-called epidemic, it is important to look at it from a payer perspective to understand some of the underlying drivers and obstacles to care that many Americans face in seeking help for themselves or family members. Many of the efforts being made at the national, state, and community levels do not adequately address the gaps in care or focus on the quality of care being provided. This presentation will look at some national trends and identify areas of focus to improve treatment outcomes for individuals suffering from opiate use disorders.

Treating the Compulsive Over-Eating Client in Addictions Treatment Services
TRACK: PROCESS ADDICTIONS  CE CREDITS: 1.5
Jeffrey Lang, MS, LCADC, CCS, CPRP
Have you noticed that you have been encountering more and more clients who are 300 or 400 pounds or more? This training will utilize evidence based research and practical advisement to assist you in holistic person-centered care related to your morbidly obese clients. Areas covered include substance use disorder versus process addiction, bio-psycho-social spiritual aspects of recovery from compulsive overeating, a review of compulsive overeating as a brain illness, understanding powerlessness and the phenomenon of craving, and a review of recovery in the fellowship of Overeaters Anonymous.

Food Addiction – Process Addiction or Substance Use Disorder?
TRACK: CO-OCCURRING DISORDERS  CE CREDITS: 1.5
Marty Lerner, MS, PhD
The idea that certain foods may be addictive was barely on our radar a few years ago. Lab studies have found that highly palatable (mostly sugar and fat laden) foods can produce addictive behavior in animals. Brain scans of obese people and compulsive eaters, meanwhile, reveal disturbances in brain reward circuits similar to those seen with drug abusers. No less than 100 scientific studies and papers on food addiction have been published this year. The science of food addiction and related eating disorders could become a game changer for addiction specialists treating these disorders as a co-occurring phenomenon. This presentation will outline the evidence for reclassifying certain eating disorders as a substance use disorder rather than a process addiction.

Tele-health is a leading use of electronic information and telecommunications technologies to support virtual/remote clinical health care. Tele-health is different from tele-medicine because it refers to a broader scope of remote healthcare services than tele-medicine, while tele-medicine refers specifically to remote clinical services. Tele-health and tele-medicine are recommended by the American Medical Association and highly recommended for e-medicine and e-therapy processes when providing services to individuals with substance use disorders and mental health issues.

The Paradox That Works: Looking Within as a First Step to Becoming Culturally Competent

TRACK: CULTURAL HUMILITY
CE CREDITS: 1.5

Bridget Rivera, PsyD

This session will assist participants in developing culturally diverse clinical skills. In order to increase the recognition and implementation of culturally sensitive and effective treatment strategies, the focus of the workshop will be on self-awareness. This focus will guide participants on the clinician’s journey of analyzing one’s “cultural self-assessment,” as described by Comas-Díaz (2012). Current literature will be discussed, however, in order to focus on self as the tool when providing treatment, much of the workshop will be experiential. Participants will analyze their specific cultural identity dimensions of race, ethnicity, gender identity, sexual orientation/identity, religion/spirituality, and socio-economic status/class, which inform how we function in the world. Worldview and power will first be discussed as these provide the “lens” through which we see the world.

The Addiction Technology Transfer Center (ATTC) Network has offered research-based, innovative, and culturally-appropriate tools to improve substance use disorder treatment for over 20 years. In this session, the presenters will highlight a myriad of newly-developed ATTC resources that you can use to enhance your practice as soon as you return to work after the conference. This session will showcase products on topics such as medication-assisted treatment, marijuana, family-centered care, the faith community, and technology-based services. It will incorporate video clips, demonstrations, and interactive discussions. Participants will come away with sample materials and concrete examples. Timothy Conley, PhD, LCSW, CAS

This presentation examines the use of creating song-poetry for coping with and responding to the stress associated with addiction counseling. Exploring the process of creating song-poetry reveals effective strategies for counselor self-therapy and coping with job-related experiences. This presentation includes three examples of lyrics and music written in response to working with addicted and mentally ill clients over a 15-year clinical career. Findings complement the extant literature on using songwriting as therapy for addicted clients and supplement current research on promoting and enhancing counselor resilience with specific evidence from a long-time addiction professional. Some presentation material was previously published by this author in Journal of Poetry Therapy (2008), 21:4, 237–245.

Co-Occurring Trauma and Substance Use Disorders: The Incest Connection
TRACK: CO-OCCLUDING DISORDERS  CE CREDITS: 1.5
Alberta Montano-DiFabio, ScD, LCADC, CCS
A discussion of co-occurring cases will develop an understanding of the interplay between early childhood sexual trauma and substance use disorder. Behaviors associated with trauma will be examined in conjunction with the presenting problems in drug rehabilitation. Case studies and successful interventions will be explored for application to various levels of care by “thinking outside of the box.” Incest, as the first trauma in a long line of traumas for both male and female substance users, will be identified. Implications of trauma as a relapse issue for the co-occurring case will be intertwined with realistic goals of treatment. A look at the question, “What is healing?” will be explored, as well as the impact of this work on the professionals serving the co-occurring population.

Treating the Whole Person: Using Medication-Assisted Treatment (MAT)
TRACK: PSYCHOPHARMACOLOGY  CE CREDITS: 1.5
Mita Johnson, EdD, LAC, LPC, LMFT, ACS, MAC, SAP
Medication-Assisted Treatment (MAT) is the use of medications, in combination with counseling, to provide a “whole-patient” approach to the treatment of substance use disorders. Ongoing research shows that a combination of medication and therapy can successfully treat these disorders, and for some people struggling with addiction, MAT can help sustain recovery. This workshop will define opiate and alcohol dependence, define and explore the effective of MAT, and study the medications typically used. Anyone who works with clients struggling with opioid dependence and alcohol use disorders would benefit from this workshop. Participants will be given information regarding resources specific to MAT.

Gambling addiction is sometimes referred to as the “hidden addiction” because there are no obvious physical signs or symptoms like those of drug or alcohol dependency. Disordered gamblers typically deny the fact that they have a problem and need help, or simply minimize the negative impact it is having on their lives. This presentation will cover the warning signs, demographics, and similarities and differences of problem gambling to that of drug or alcohol adddiction. Additionally, there will be discussion on emerging trends in gambling, responsible gambling, and strategies to ensure gambling remains a form of entertainment instead of a progressive and devastating illness.

The merging of eastern culture influenced therapies is changing the way western medicine and behavioral health practice views the clinician, the client, evidenced-based practice, and future research direction. Though it has its roots in Buddhist meditation, a non-religious practice of mindfulness has entered the American mainstream in recent years. Thousands of studies have documented the physical and mental health benefits of mindfulness, inspiring programs to adapt mindfulness-based models for schools, prisons, hospitals, veterans centers, and beyond. This workshop will review the research and its relevance to effective trauma-sensitive practices, and provide scripts for five mindful practices. Participants can expect to actively participate in small groups practicing these skills.

2016 Update: HIV/AIDS and Other Infectious Diseases for Substance Use Disorder and Behavioral Health Professionals
CE CREDITS: 7
Mita Johnson, EdD, LAC, LPC, LMFT, ACS, MAC, SAP
HIV, AIDS and hepatitis are public health concerns for both clients and professionals in substance use disorder programs. This workshop will explore the blood-borne pathogens most frequently contracted and spread by clients (HIV, AIDS, hepatitis). There will be a discussion regarding STIs/STDs that are prevalent within this same population (HPV, herpes, and bacterial infections). The intent of this workshop is to promote a factual understanding of the diseases our clients are exposed to in order to promote harm reduction, infection containment, and safe, protected sex.

Not the Usual Ethics Training: Navigating Difficult and Challenging Situations
CE CREDITS: 7
Frances Patterson, PhD, LADAC, MAC, BCPC and Kathryn Benson, LADC, NCAC II, QSA QSC
Addiction professionals are confronted almost daily with ethical situations such as receiving a gift from a client, social situations, dual relationships, touch, or countertransference. “Grey areas” are often the most confusing. When counselors lack sufficient training, do not stay current in their training, or become complacent, they may be at risk of ethical mistakes or violations. During this training, participants will explore some difficult and often complex ethical situations. Discussion will include examples of situations and challenges to offer a clearer understanding of appropriate responses when dilemmas arise. The presenters will utilize didactic, media and experiential techniques, allowing participants to explore the dangers of not addressing issues that arise during sessions with clients.

With funding from NIDA, Cynthia Moreno Tuohy and Danya International developed and evaluated a multi-component, multi-media tool for use by addiction and other helping professionals to assist adults and youth improve their life traumas and conflict through skills that are an intensive set of psycho-emotional-social-spiritual Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT) treatments. The goals of these treatments are to understand the processes in the limbic and frontal cortex and how to develop self-regulation by building new neuroplastic changes in the brain and behavior.
Eating Disorders are a serious disease. You need someone who has experience to help you navigate recovery.

Most people who have an eating disorder are in denial. So how do you know if your client has a true eating disorder? Here are some warning signs:

- Obsessing over food (when they are going to eat next, what they are going to eat, etc.)
- Isolating from others so they can eat as much or as little as they want without others commenting.
- Hiding food for consumption later, when they are alone.
- Excusing themselves to go to the bathroom after each meal, so they can purge what they just ate.
- Excessive exercising, sometimes for hours each day.

We have been helping men and women recover from eating disorders for over 17 years. Call us for help, 866 584.2903

Gobi by Square One
Booth 86
http://www.gobi.support

Gobi is a new online preventive intervention program for teens and their parents. Gobi was designed by clinicians and students to help teens make better decisions around substance use and provide parents research and education on teen using and skills for better communicating. Our target is families who have become aware that their teenager is experimenting with drugs or alcohol. The program, which runs for 60 days, combines daily assignments, texts and a chat space to reach teens where they live. Our early survey results show that after using Gobi teens say they have better relationships with their parents, they decreased their using, they are better able to manage stress and they are more aware of their choices. For further information, visit us at Booth 86.

WestBridge

http://www.westbridge.org

WestBridge supports the long-term recovery of individuals and families who experience co-occurring mental illness and substance use disorders. We provide residential and community based treatment for adult men in Manchester, NH and Brooksville, FL. In all of our programs we utilize evidence based practices developed by the Dartmouth Psychiatric Research Center. We treat each individual using an integrated model that addresses mental illness and substance use disorders concurrently. Participants are not defined by their illnesses in our community; their recovery is based on their strengths. We meet each individual and his or her family where they are with their illness, and customize personal achievement agendas to fit their needs.
