Welcome to the NAADAC Annual Conference & 40th Anniversary Celebration!

As NAADAC President, I, and the Washington NAADAC affiliate, the Chemical Dependency Professionals of Washington State (CDPWS), welcome you to the 2014 NAADAC Annual Conference & 40th Anniversary Celebration, Natural Beauty, Unrivaled Education. We are thrilled to be holding our conference in Seattle, our Executive Director’s hometown and a city that is known for its diverse culture, progressive traditions, and laid back, adventurous lifestyle, and at our site, the DoubleTree by Hilton Hotel Seattle Airport. We are also thrilled to be able to celebrate NAADAC’s 40 years of rich history as a leader in the addiction profession.

This conference not only includes a strong lineup of keynote and plenary speakers, but also a multitude of workshops with the latest information on the latest trends and issues that impact all addiction-focused professionals, and a new two-day gambling track.

The conference isn’t all about learning, however. It is also about networking and having fun. As in the past, we will be recognizing contributions to the addiction profession and outstanding achievement efforts at our awards luncheon. There will be plenty of breaks throughout the conference during which we can network with addiction professionals from around the country and learn what challenges and successes we have in common. I would encourage you to come to the NAADAC Education & Research Foundation (NERF) Jam Session & Auction. It is an opportunity to let loose and have fun, all while supporting all of the important work funded by NERF. It is open to all!

The NAADAC Executive Committee and Board of Directors will be conducting business meetings during the conference and will be available to you to help with any issues you may have. Please feel free to approach any of us while at the conference. As President, I personally hope to meet as many of you as possible and learn what the needs are in your home states.

In closing, I want to thank all of the wonderful sponsors and partners for their support in this year’s conference. We couldn’t have put it together without you and I hope to meet with as many of you as possible. Please visit the exhibit hall and give them your thanks and appreciation as well.

I also want to thank Executive Director Cynthia Moreno Tuohy and the NAADAC staff, for all of their hard work in putting this conference together on top of their already busy demands at the NAADAC office.

I thoroughly hope you enjoy Seattle and the Conference!

Robert “Bob” Richards, MA, CADAC III, NCAC II
NAADAC President

Professional Ethics: 50 Shades of Gray
Michael Wagner, LICSW, MAC

Codes of professional ethics contain very few black-and-white statements on boundaries. The vast majority of the guidelines are stated in shades of gray. That fulfills the function of a code, as a set of guidelines rather than a set of hard and fast rules. Within the gray, we are purposely left to make decisions. This workshop moves from the “why” of healthy boundaries, to the “how.” Participants will practice applying various ethical decision-making models to increasingly subtle ethical dilemmas. This is a hands-on, how-to, six-hour experience.

WHAT’S NEW IN THE DSM-5 AND THE NEW ASAM CRITERIA? NEW DIRECTIONS, NEW CRITERIA
David Mee-Lee, MD
Two new publications in 2013 will impact your addiction and mental health treatment: DSM-5 from the American Psychiatric Association and The ASAM Criteria, a new revision published in October 2013 by the American Society of Addiction Medicine. The Diagnostic and Statistical Manual (DSM) for the Treatment of Mental Disorders of the American Psychiatric Association are the most widely used diagnostic criteria. The ASAM Criteria are the most widely used and comprehensive set of guidelines for assessment, service planning, placement, continued stay and discharge of people with addictive disorders. This presentation will highlight what is new in DSM-5 and The ASAM Criteria since the last published editions. It will focus on skill-building to use the spirit and content of The ASAM Criteria and the role of diagnosis in treatment.

Marijuana: The Forgotten Drug
Darryl S. Inaba, PharmD, CATC-V, CADC III
Marijuana: The Forgotten Drug will review the past and current use and abuse of marijuana; its increasing toxic effects due to increasing potency; and its potential to create significant addiction disorder. The presentation will increase awareness about the various forms of cannabinoid substances being used medically and abused recreationally. It will familiarize participants with the basic pharmacology and toxicology of these substances including reported interactions with other therapeutic medications.

Leadership Orientation (Part 1 of 2): Strategic Planning and NAADAC Initiatives
Cynthia Moreno Tuohy, NCAC II, CCDC III, SAP, Robert Richards, MA, NCAC II, CADC III, and Catherine M. Iacuzzi, PsyD, MLADC, LCS
This session will describe and discuss the roles and responsibilities of a Board of Directors at the State Affiliate level working with the National NAADAC level. Specific discussion points will be the following: Board governance including board development, board roles and responsibilities, budget, and oversight, reporting, and strategic planning. Cases of functional and less functional examples will be discussed. This training is specific for NAADAC Affiliates and NAADAC Leadership.

I’m a Supervisor but Who Am I Really: a Psycho-Spiritual Approach to Supervision as a Tool to Assist the Supervisor
Christopher Shea, MA, CRAFT, CACAD
In the new paradigm of the ACA, supervision is essential to best practices and proper care of the client as well as the clinician. Supervision is not only a regulatory tool, but can, and should, be used to assist the supervisor in their growth as a professional. In this presentation, I will speak about the psychological and spiritual components of supervision which may be employed to assist the supervisor in self-knowledge. Understanding oneself, and one’s role as a supervisor, will better assist the supervisor to guide the clinician in their work. Incorporating recent research and drawing from a holistic approach centered on CBT techniques in a spiritual sense, I will guide the participants through a process of self-awareness and understanding.

Heroin is my Mother and Booze is my Father – Addiction as an Attachment Disorder
Michael G. Bricker, MS, CADC II, LPC
This workshop will explore the inter-relationship of childhood attachment deficits and adult behavioral health disorders. Attachment disorders can profoundly affect the limbic system of the brain, thus altering normal development and paving the way for later addictive disorders. The efficacy of the 12-Step Recovery Model, Women for Sobriety and other successful modalities will be examined through the lens of attachment and personality development. We will explore how relapse triggers can be de-fused using these concepts.

Tech Support: Using Technology to Support Ongoing Recovery
Susie Mullens, MS, LPC, ALPS, AADC-S, SAP
Most clinicians have experienced the vibration/buzz and ring of a cell phone during session. Depending upon whether we are “digital immigrants” or “digital natives” our responses might differ. We are working with clients who are connected in different ways that what many have traditionally experienced (especially with younger clients). We pride ourselves on “meeting clients where they are,” yet many clinicians are reluctant to cross the digital divide. Untangling the mystery and fear of technology for doesn’t have to be scary—the clinician just has to be willing and open to working within the digital culture in an ethically responsible manner and with a new type of cultural competence. Attend this interactive session to learn more about distance counseling, applications and technology assisted care.

Marijuana and Youth: Legal, Medical, Recreational Use and Addiction Implications
Stephen P. Bogan, MA, LMHC, CDP
The “new marijuana” being used by adolescents is not your “father’s pot.” This workshop will address the complicated current realities of new legalization of cannabis for adults, teens getting access to highly potent medical cannabis, the low perception of harm, increasing use by adolescents, and the developmental and brain effects of early use and developing addiction to cannabis. The unique and less than subtle nature of this drug, addictive potential, developmental effects, assessment, intervention, treatment, and recovery practices will be discussed. The increased addiction risks for youth with anxiety, depression, ADHD, and developmental trauma will be discussed. Relevant case examples will be used to illustrate hopeful and helpful approaches for clinicians and families.

Naloxone, Naltrexone, Nalmefene: Management of Overdose, Rapid Detoxification and Addiction Cravings
Darryl S. Inaba, PharmD, CATC-V, CADC III
Effective and safe utilization of naloxone in reversing opioid overdoses in the U.S. over the past several decades has resulted in a recent call for it to be available as a non-prescription medication so that it is readily accessible to prevent the increasing number of opiate/opioid deaths. This presentation will present on the proper use and potential pitfalls of using opioid antagonist in opiate/opioid overdose management, the use of naloxone or nalmefene to induce Rapid Opioid Detoxification, and the FDA-approved use of naltrexone for the suppression of alcohol and opioid addiction cravings. It will also discuss the efficacy and treatment considerations regarding this potentially very underused intervention, the use of oral nalmefene in Europe to treat alcohol cravings, and the use of naltrexone and nalmefene to treat other drug and behavioral addiction.

The Ethics of Multiple Roles in Small Communities
Matthew Mejia, PsyD, MA, LPC, Licensed Psychologist and James Ward, MSW, LAC, LSW
Roles in the ethics codes seem to reflect a perfect world where treatment providers and clients only see and know each other in the therapy office. The reality is messier, especially when we live in small communities and small subcultures leading to multiple roles and potential roles between therapist and client. We will take a look at the reality of this situation and offer some real world problem-solving model to live in the real world and holding therapeutic boundaries.

INCASE – Appreciative Inquiry Research Dealing with College Student Prescription Drug Abuse
Margaret A. Smith, EdD, LADC, John Finneran, PhD, LADC-1, Jeanelle Boyer, PhD, and Marj Droppa, PhD
Appreciative Inquiry (AI) is a qualitative research method that can be used to help community groups and organizations develop solution-focused strategies to address challenging issues. A unique feature of the AI approach is that it seeks to engage a community of individuals based on their experiences, strengths and collective creativity. This workshop will present the application of the AI process to address the issue of prescription drug misuse on a college campus. The AI process included members from the college student body, faculty, and staff. This workshop will present the stages of the AI process, and how the process suggested a prevention strategy for reducing prescription medication misuse.

DSM-5 and Its Use by Substance Use Professionals
Greg Bauer, CDP, NCAC1
The new Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders, 5th Edition (DSM-5) was published in 2013 with a number of changes to criteria and terminology of addictions, substance-related disorders and alcoholism. The presentation will enhance chemical dependency counselors’ and other staff’s knowledge of these changes. Participants will gain knowledge about the use of the DSM-5 in a clinical setting regarding assessing substance use. Participants will become familiar with the organization and changes in the DSM-5 and be exposed to the new language and criteria for substance use disorders, including severity system.

Treatment of (especially) opiate/opioid use disorder in a patient with chronic pain continues to be a very difficult challenge, as is the treatment of pain in any patient with a substance-related and addictive disorder. This presentation will consider a historical swing between over- and under-treatment of pain and review the current increase in opioid overdose and addiction problems, especially in patients treated for chronic pain. It will examine the wide range opioid substances currently abused, inclusive of kratom, a non-opioid substance with major opioid effects, the brain imaging of both physical and emotional pain, newer understandings of how hyperalgesia, hyperpathia, hyperkatifeia, allodynia, and opioid addiction compromises the use of opioids in the treatment of chronic pain, and opioid alternatives to treat chronic pain. If time permits, it will look at the basic neuropharmacology of opioids and opioid addiction and current development in opioid addiction treatment.

<td>At the heart of co-dependency is a belief by the co-dependent that he or she is not enough. The co-dependent looks at self and says, “I am not complete, safe or sufficient alone.” Sensing this essential incompleteness, the co-dependent turns to other people to fill in the gaps. This strategy of using others to provide wholeness is hedgy because people are notoriously unreliable and unforgiving. Tying sense of self to another person can be like grasping the back of a bucking roller coaster one-handed. In the midst of such chaos, a focus on weight and body image can seem a safe refuge with devastating consequences. When co-dependency, relationship addiction and eating disorders become entangled, recovery requires treatment of each condition to achieve long-term success.</td>

<td>This training session is an aide for SUD counselors to improve their skills in response to treatment challenges presented by clients from Hispanic and Latino cultures. The word “culture” is loaded with meaning and has many potential implications, so the ideas expressed in this brief overview are not exhaustive nor intended to provide a “freeze frame” cultural portrait of all Hispanics and Latinos that pretends they are all the same or unchanged. Such a portrait defies reality. The approach taken in this training session is to highlight key similarities and differences in cultural beliefs, attitudes, and practices commonly seen among Latino SUD clients that potentially influence their substance use behavior and responsiveness to treatment. “Americanization” has variable impacts across generations of Latinos. Indeed, the “sending” nations from which Latinos have historically emigrated, and continue to do so, are also experiencing rapid social changes that influence substance use and SUD in their own societies.</td>

Addressing Tobacco: A Recovery-Oriented Integrated Systems Approach
Tony Klein, MPA, CASAC, NCAC II

Cigarette smoking or other forms of tobacco use has a significant presence in alcohol and drug use rituals. For this reason, continued tobacco use after stopping drug of choice can sustain the conditioned processes of addictive thinking, feeling, and behavior, and impede the progression of drug recovery. This session utilizes research data and the lessons learned from New York State Promising Tobacco Intervention Projects to demonstrate that stopping tobacco concurrently with other drugs reduces the probability of relapse to other substances and enhances the quality of overall recovery. An overview will be provided of a tobacco intervention model designed to challenge the prevailing social norms that influence tobacco use among those with substance use disorders while providing evidence-based treatment within a framework of recovery-oriented counseling.

INCASE – Challenges in Teaching Ethics to Addictions Counselors
Alan Cavaliola, PhD, LPC, LCADC and Edward Reading, PhD, LCADC

Training in NAADAC Ethical Standards is a key component to any program that educates prospective candidates who wish to become addictions counselors. Ethics training is often taught by reviewing the Ethical Standards in detail and then providing students with ethical case examples. This approach assumes that ethics can be assimilated by students in a finite, concrete manner. However, many ethical situations that students confront once they are working in the field often fall outside the Standards or may represent a nuance of some Ethical Standard. This presentation will present case material involving ethical standard violations and will describe methods by which ethics can be taught in a way that will be applicable to a variety of counseling situations.

This presentation will focus on understanding deprivation and dependency as precursors to experiencing a substance abuse problem. Children who are reared in a cycle of neglect and abuse develop certain coping mechanisms as survival skills. By understanding this world of abnormal rearing, skilled helpers can facilitate the proper intervention to change these behavior patterns. The cycle will include specific examples of adult behaviors that are coping skills learned as a child survivor and are no longer serving them well as an adult.

Becoming More Aware of the ACA/Medicaid Impact on Insurance Billing
Beverly Remm

The Affordable Care Act (ACA) created a significant expansion of Medicaid funding to an estimated 16 million individuals. This expansion has greatly impacted the case load of mental health and addiction services. This has also placed more emphasis on the national move towards electronic clinical and billing records. As a result, many professionals and agencies have not adapted to the increased demands of client workload and insurance requirements. Most agencies do not realize when starting the Medicaid billing process, the processes and requirements are vague and difficult to decipher. This webinar will provide a current look at Medicaid insurance requirements and the impact and opportunities for addiction and mental health professionals, as well as what you need to know when beginning your insurance billing process.
Participants will learn about the prevalence of marijuana use in the United States, the effects of marijuana in the brain, and changes in marijuana from the 1960s to today. We will examine the scientific realities of the effects of marijuana use. We will review the research on the effects of fetal exposure to marijuana, the impact of marijuana at the cellular level, and the resulting effects on children born to parents who smoke marijuana. We will look at the realities of “medical” marijuana.

Beyond the Myths: The Science of Marijuana

Ronald A. Chupp, MSW, LCSW, LCAC, NCAC II

This workshop explores and experientially demonstrates the use of feed up and feed forward as effective tools in the development of leadership skills for clinical supervisors. Rather than strictly focusing on the past (feedback on what has already occurred), skilled supervisors provide an infinite variety of opportunities for the future through feed up and feed forward. The concept of feed up and feed forward in clinical supervision changes the paradigm from proving “wrongs” to helping counselors be “right.” This focus eliminates the negativity of receiving feedback by replacing it with a message that has the potential of instilling self-motivation and professional growth at a more rapid pace.

Beth Donnellan, Med, ABD, FT

This purpose of this presentation is to introduce a new model of education/training that benefits both universities and agencies. By partnering together, these entities can provide a strong addictions training track for college students. Students graduating from this collaborative program will not only understand specific addictions theories, but also know how to implement them. This model reduces the training time/money for hiring agencies and provides students with an expert education. Students who graduate under this model will be able to provide excellent care to their clients upon graduation.

Moderator: Laura Fenster Rothschild, PhD; Panelists: Philip T. McCabe CSW, CAS, CDVC, DRCC, Craig Sloan, LCSW, CASAC, Jeff Zacharias, LCSW, CAADC, BRI-I, CSAT Candidate, and Raven James, PhD

NALGAP’s mission is to confront all forms of oppression and discriminatory practices in the delivery of services to all people and to advocate for programs and services that affirm all genders and sexual orientations. Founded in 1979 and dedicated to the prevention and treatment of alcoholism, substance abuse, and other addictions in lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer communities, NALGAP endorses treatment that must include a focus on the effects of stigma, homophobia and heterosexism in order to be beneficial to the client. Not only does treatment need to be inclusive of the core issues affecting LGBT clients, it needs to maintain a LGBT affirming approach in order to help individuals develop and maintain recovery. For 35 years, NALGAP has been there working with others to improve the lives of LGBTQ individuals.

Trying Differently, Not Harder: Improving Treatment Outcomes by Accommodating Brain-Based Conditions like FASD

David Gerry and Diane Malbin, MSW

We’ve all known frustrating clients who “talk-the-talk” and don’t “walk-the-walk” and who relapsed no matter how skilled our work. These complex clients have often had multiple mental health diagnoses and multiple interventions, yet nothing seemed to work. A missing puzzle piece is often undiagnosed brain dysfunction like Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD), trauma, or other brain-based disorders. This session provides current research on brain-based conditions, and introduces a neurobehavioral screening tool for client identification. We explore why good techniques may simply be a poor fit for people whose brains work differently and introduce a brain-based approach for person-specific application based on strengths and abilities. Presentation includes exercises, video interviews, and concepts are illustrated by many stories and case examples, demonstrating improved outcomes.

Family Transformation for Adolescent Males

James Campbell, MA, CAC II and Adam Brickner, MPA

There has been a wealth of recent discoveries about the biological, psychological, social, spiritual, and experiential aspects of adolescent development and learning. Unfortunately, there is frequently a disconnection between what we know works with adolescents and the treatment modalities we use when working with them. We cling to outdated paradigms and then cringe when they prove less than effective. This session briefly reviews some of the most important discoveries related to adolescent development in recent years and then explores how to best apply that knowledge to design and implement effective treatment strategies for engaging and working with adolescents and their families. An emphasis is placed on practical implementation in working successfully and holistically with adolescents.

When We Get Behind Closed Doors: Clinical Supervision for Client Safety and Clinician Growth

Alan Lyme, LCSW, ICACS, ICADC

As the substance use and mental health field is constantly changing, clinical supervision is the cornerstone for staff development and quality assurance. Whether a seasoned veteran or fresh-out-of-college, addictions counselors legally and ethically need clinical supervision. How well that supervision is managed may have an impact not only on the clinician, but also on the experience and outcome for each client. This overview of clinical supervision will offer a window into managing staff needs in an array of issues, and will address not only the challenges that quality supervision presents, but also some solutions that may help both supervisor and supervisee get more from the experience.

Breakout Session: Evergreen 2

The Affordable Care Act: Responding with Co-Occurring Substance Use and Mental Health Competency

Angele Mass-Baker, LPC, LMFT and Omorinike Hamilton, LPC, CRC, NCC, NCACII

This workshop will provide an overview of the significance of the Affordable Care Act, the Essential Benefits and the implications for providing integrated substance abuse and co-occurring mental health treatment. Principles of integrated care (IDDT) and systems of care (CCISC) will also be examined to facilitate co-occurring competency. Health Reform places a greater emphasis on integrated care, including Federally Qualified Health Centers, to meet the behavioral health needs of individuals. Integrated and collaborative care has been shown to optimize recovery outcomes and improve cost-effectiveness. Are You Ready?

Breakout Session: Cascade 7-8

INCASE – Bridging the Gap Between Disciplines: Anthropological Insights into Substance Use and Grassroots Recovery Movements

Peter L. Myers, PhD

There is a vast literature on the use of psychoactive substances and culture, mostly segregated within the domain of anthropology. A summary of significant findings from this century of research will be presented, and pitfalls in attempts at constructing cultural competency trainings and materials for counselors and students. Secondarily, there is a large literature on “folk psychotherapy,” almost all from distant communities, which will be applied to recovery movements in North America, in hopes of aiding to construct strategies that strengthen recovery oriented systems of care. The few anthropologists who have studied American recovery movements will be noted. Attendees will be provided with a comprehensive bibliography.

Potentially Beneficial Interactions: Implications for Counselors Working in Substance Use Disorder Counseling

Kevin Doyle, EdD, LPC, LSATP

Codes of ethics for counselors are beginning to include language relating to “Potentially Beneficial Interactions” with current and former clients, indicating that the adage of “once a client” is not fully adequate for guiding a counselor in making ethical decisions or for determining whether an ongoing relationship with a current or former client is problematic. This presentation will focus on the issue of potentially beneficial relationships with current and former clients in recovery from substance use disorders, particularly for counselors also in recovery themselves, and those who supervise them. Proposed guidelines will be presented, and a facilitated discussion will conclude the session.

Breakout Session: Evergreen 3

The Family Transformation Model for Women & Children

Adam Brickner, MPA

Substance use disorders have a debilitating effect on families. Research suggests that about 90 percent of children in foster care are there due to a parent’s substance use disorder. This leads to family collapse that includes developmental delays affecting social, emotional, and intellectual growth of these children. With only 3.6 percent of treatment services allowing women and their children to receive treatment in a residential facility together, parent-child bonding is further inhibited. Participants will learn about the Family Transformation Model for Women & Children that incorporates the bio-psycho-social-spiritual-experiential model of addiction (Georgi, 1988). The Model uses evidence-based practices in the format of ten core principles that guide treatment of substance use disorders, promotion of parent-child bonding, and improvement in age appropriate child development.
Mindfulness-Based Relapse Prevention: An Overview

Therissa Libby, PhD

Many medical and psychotherapeutic disciplines have incorporated mindfulness practice into their treatment recommendations. Mindfulness meditation groups and Mindfulness-Based Stress Reduction (MBSR) programs are widely available, and research has demonstrated the efficacy of MBSR in improving outcomes for those diagnosed with conditions as disparate as cardiovascular disease, chronic pain, and major depressive disorder. Relapse researcher Alan Marlatt explored the utility of mindfulness practice, and developed Mindfulness-Based Relapse Prevention (MBRP). This training reviews research on MBSR and MBRP, and examines a role for mindfulness in treatment and recovery. Participants also consider the value of mindfulness practice in reducing their own stress and preventing burnout.

Chemical Dependency Care as a Curriculum Culture: Envisioning Ourselves as Educators

Jerry Blackburn, BA, CDP

A great deal of what we do in Substance Use Disorder treatment involves the transfer of knowledge. Whether through lectures or presentations, small group discussions, modeling of behaviors or simply our conduct as professionals in the healthcare community, we are often in the role of educator. In consideration, as professionals we are provided very little in regards to the grand concepts of learning. The prospect of educating however impacts every aspect of what we aim to accomplish in treatment as it serves as a foundation for the process of change, increases motivation and participation and in the end supports retention and subsequently success. As such, envisioning ourselves as educators, as well as clinicians, can be a prosperous shift. After all, recovery is learned.

The Addict...and What the Police Officer Sees

Carlos Cruz

Cruz’s goal is to inform attendees about what the average police officer sees and deals with when they encounter an addict. He shows the latest paraphernalia, stash areas (where drugs are hidden), street lingo, and drug trends ranging from prescription drugs, to date rape drugs, and abused drugs, such as alcohol, caffeine, heroine, Ecstasy, and methamphetamine. He emphasizes the relationship between criminal gangs and the drug world. Cruz also shows the affects that media and marketing influence on teens in relation to drugs (i.e. Internet, TV, movies, music, games, videos, clothing, books, magazines, and advertisement). The addiction professional will understand what officers can and cannot do, what concerns, frustrates, and at the same time, fascinates law enforcement when dealing with addicts, addiction and drugs.

Why are National Credentials Important?

Kathy Benson, NCAC II, SAP

The primary objective of this presentation is to review the standards and practice of the NAADAC-National Certification Commission for Addiction Professionals and to reinforce the essential necessity to obtain and maintain professional credentials.

Promoting Collaborative Integration

Mita Johnson, LPC, LMFT, ACS, LAC, MAC, SAP, EdD (c)

This presentation will be a nuts-and-bolts practical session on how to integrate addiction-specific services with primary and mental health care. Integrating behavioral health care (mental health and addiction-specific professionals) is no longer an option. Tips on how to market and build an integrated primary care service or an integrated behavioral health care service will be provided. Attendees will learn how to conduct an initial consultation appointment. A practical format for assessment and intervention, within diverse environments, will be presented. Behavioral and cognitive interventions, relevant to primary care, will be shared with participants. A discussion will be initiated regarding common health concerns that would benefit from behavioral health intervention. Participants will receive numerous tools and resources for building a successful collaborative care practice.

Doing Recovery Perfectly and Other Absurd Ideas

Frances Patterson, PhD, LADAC, MAC, BCPC, CCJAS, SAP, QCS

Clients often hear what is not said. They come to treatment with ideas about counselors, treatment and recovery. Do addictions counselors set clients up for failure by supporting some “absurd” ideas they possess? “My life will be wonderful...,” “I can do recovery perfectly,” “12 stepping is the only way.” Ethically, counselors are obligated to help clients learn to live in reality, with disappointments as well as successes. By practicing with competence while demonstrating honesty, openness and cultural awareness, counselors will aide clients in making positive changes in their lives. This workshop will explore how to improve outcomes by working with clients through honest and caring therapeutic relationships. Through didactic, multimedia and discussion, Dr. Patterson will encourage self-exploration in how each participant manages the treatment process.

Motivation for Maintenance: Developing Discrepancy from Moments of Addictive Relapse

George DuWors, MSW, LCSW, BCD

Motivational Interviewing meets 12 step recovery at the moment of relapse! What “motivational discrepancies” may be developed from the very decision to pick up the first drink or drug of physical relapse? From thoughts like “One won’t hurt” or “I can handle it now,” not to mention less printable variations? How might we use this evidence-based skill to motivate our clients, not just for change, but for maintenance? And how do the evidence-based principles of 12 Step Recovery prevent these fatal decisions?

Keynote: Federal and State Panel and Update on Implications for the Addiction Workforce

David Minetta, MSW (ONDCP), H. Westley Clark, MD, JD, MPH, CAS, FASAM (SAMHSA), David Dickinson (SAMHSA), Jack Stein PhD (NIDA), and Ken Stark (WA State)

This session will describe the evolution of the addiction profession with the implementation of the Affordable Care Act (ACA) and other national initiatives. It is extremely important for addiction professionals to stay abreast of recent developments and potential changes to the profession, as well as stay informed about how your practice might be affected. At the end of the presentation, participants will be able to ask questions of the presenters and receive immediate answers.

Effective Alcohol Use Prevention Education: A Comparison of

Evidence-Based Interventions

Chris G Cubero, PhD, LPC, CAADC, MAC, NCC

Preventative alcohol and other drug (AOD) education can lower the incidence of heavy drinking among college age students. This poster presentation underscores the efficacy of prevention education methodologies with young adults. Two current methodologies include delivery of education programming via face to face contact or electronically (web based).

This poster highlights the findings of a comparison study on the efficacy of an electronic web based prevention education intervention and a face to face education intervention with first year college students. Both interventions showed a decrease in alcohol use behaviors among students from pre to post. Practical implications may indicate that electronic personalized feedback methodologies benefit students with higher rates of AOD use and misuse. Additional findings and implications are also discussed.

Therapeutic Narrative in Addiction Counseling

David Hall, PsyD, LMFT, LPC

Narrative has always played an important role in the process of recovery for so many people. Whether it is the stories of personal struggle shared at a meeting, the metaphors a counselor uses to help a client see their struggles in a new light, or the inspirational stories that move us forward when we hear about someone’s successful recovery. This poster presentation will exhibit information on some of the best-practice narrative-based approaches in recovery work that draw from the current literature and research. A therapeutic focus that mindfully utilizes narrative gives the counseler the ability to use personal stories, entertainment, metaphors, and even the choice of words as a way to help clients towards recovery.

Buprenorphine Research Update

Therissa A. Libby, PhD

Both research and clinical experience have shown that opioid dependence is among the most intractable of addictive disorders, making it advantagetous to have as many clinical tools as possible to bring to bear on it. Since being implemented in 2003 in the U.S., buprenorphine and buprenorphinenaloxone have been widely used for detoxification and maintenance treatment for opioid dependence. In parallel, research on these medications has continued, expanding our understanding of many aspects of these treatment options. Areas of research include effectiveness with various populations, treatment retention, advantages and disadvantages of office-based treatment, risk of diversion to street use, and safety profile of use during pregnancy. This poster reviews the latest research results and considers their implications for client evaluation, treatment placement and counseling/case management.

Human Sexuality Education 101: Designed for Addiction Professionals
Thimi W. Pappas, PhD
This poster is designed to give addiction professionals a basic understanding of the human sexuality issues connected to substance abuse disorders. The poster includes an overview of these sexuality issues including: sexual scripting, sexual trauma, sexual health in college students, date rape and violence, the role of sexual orientation and gender identity, sexual function problems, physical effects and mental health/safety based anxiety. In addition, participants will become familiar with the Circles of Sexuality, which describes the areas of sensualization, sexualization, sexual health and reproduction, intimacy and sexual identity. Finally, a recent survey of addiction professionals (Pappas, 2014) is discussed, highlighting the importance human sexuality education in the training of addiction professionals to increase therapeutic efficacy.

Compulsive Internet Use: Prevalence, Salience & Recommended Interventions for Children & Adolescents
Mary Schatz, PhC, CDP, CRC, LCAS-A, LPCA
Poster will provide general overview of what Internet addiction is, including: prevalence estimates, diagnostic criteria and recommended best practices to address this growing societal problem affecting youth and families worldwide.

Acudetox
James Ward, LAC, LSW, ADS
AcuDetox is a 10-point auricular acupuncture protocol designed to treat withdrawal symptoms. It was developed in the 1970’s and is used worldwide to treat trauma, stress, and withdrawal. The points are associated with different detox organs in the body and most individuals report an overwhelming sense of relaxation and peace for the process. This is evidence supporting this protocol as a useful adjunct to traditional treatment models.

Dependence and its Dear Friend Co-Dependence
Jeanne Hayes, LMHC, LCAC, ICAC II
This seminar has been designed to provide participants with an effective understanding of the family response to addiction. For addiction and recovery to be understood by all concerned, it is imperative to see the parallel experiences of both the addict and those who care about them. Using this insight we, as professionals, are better prepared to relate more effectively with both the client and their families. The goals and objectives of treatment become clearer. This presentation recognizes boundaries and increases the ability of clients to find their own paths and walk them toward spiritual growth.

Nutrition, Mental Health, and Behavior Change: Rethinking the Current Model of Health
Luke Meier, PLHMP, Certified Sports Nutritionist
MMM…. Food. However, not just any “food,” but whole, one-ingredient foods that are full of proteins, fats, carbohydrates, along with vitamins and minerals in their easy-to-digest form. When it comes to treating clients with mental health concerns, ignore what they eat is to ignore such an obvious part. Now, rethinking the current model of health by incorporating basic nutrition in treatment plans has been shown to aid in treatment of symptoms, instead of depending on medical and pharmaceutical means. As a nutritionist and a therapist, I believe that nutrition is a large missing piece of the puzzle that can aid in mental health.

The Recovery to Practice (RTP) Initiative: Educational Opportunities for the Recovery-Oriented Addiction Professional
Misti Storie, MS, NCC
As a part of the federal government’s efforts to promote recovery for all Americans affected by addiction, SAMHSA launched its Recovery to Practice (RTP) Initiative. The RTP Initiative is designed to hasten awareness, acceptance, and adoption of recovery-based practices in the delivery of addiction-related services and builds on SAMHSA’s definition and fundamental components of recovery. As a part of this Initiative, NAADAC developed a multi-level national training curriculum built on SAMHSA’s definition and fundamental components of recovery, consisting of nine webinars, several articles in NAADAC’s magazine, a certificate program, a collection of electronic print resources, inclusion of recovery-oriented test questions into certification test banks, and informational sessions at NAADAC conferences. Join me in this session to learn about the RTP Initiative and this invaluable education.

Mind Altering...Synthetic (Designer) and Naturally Occurring…Drugs
C.C. Nuckols, PhD
Keeping up with the ever-expanding numbers of substances that alter mood is a very difficult job. By slightly altering the chemical structure of one euphoria producing drug, another can be fashioned. By the time one such drug falls into the FDA’s watch list, another of equal or greater potency is already being created. This skills-training event will introduce participants to the current world of designer drugs and also to the naturally occurring substances used to alter mind. Emphasis will be placed on the cannabinoids (i.e. “Spice”), stimulant “bath salts” (i.e. “Bonsai Grow”), psychedelics (i.e. “Europa”), naturally occurring depressant/stimulants (i.e. “Kratom”), and mixtures such as the opioid-like “Krokodil.” This training will give participants an understanding of the subjective, toxic and withdrawal effects of the drugs and other issues important to treatment.

Technology—Good or Evil? YES!
John Dunbar, BA
From email to e-prescribing to EMR to virtual treatment programs, there is a deluge of new and a plethora of old technologies available to the addiction professional. Technological advances present themselves as having unique purpose and often are powerful tools. So what’s the issue? This session has two primary functions. The first is to provide the structure and some tools to assess multiple technologies on the basis of their efficacy, effectiveness, safety, privacy, confidentiality, practicality and a basis to understand potential fraud and breach. The second is to challenge previous paradigms which have limited adopting technology and then fully incorporate and effectively use these technologies.

The Time Has Come to Recognize 12 Step Concepts as an Evidenced-Based Best Practice

Robert L. Malphrus, MEd, CDP

In 1988, noted professor Robert S. Helgoe published a book called: Recovery, A Pull from the Source, in which he revealed how and why the 12 Steps of Alcoholics Anonymous evoke positive change. In 2002, he published a second book titled, Hierarchy of Recovery, as a means of introducing a dynamic survey tool designed to measure recovery progression. Tragically, Professor Helgoe passed away before he was able to share his ideas with a national audience. As his friend and co-worker, it is my pleasure to demonstrate the value of his research and why the time has come for official recognition of 12-based recovery concepts as an evidence-based Best Practice. The first 50 presentation attendees will receive copies of Hierarchy of Recovery.

The Perfect Storm: Gay Men, Crystal Meth, and Sex Cultural Considerations for Gay Affirming Treatment

Craig Sloane, LCSW, CASAC

For many gay male drug users, crystal methamphetamine can become inextricably linked to sexual activities. This fusion often creates co-occurring crystal meth addiction and sexual compulsivity. Factors that play a role in the creation of this “perfect storm” of addictive disorders include the pharmacology of crystal methamphetamine, societal and internalized homophobia, shame-based trauma in gay men, perceived sexual benefits of using crystal meth, and more. This workshop will explore the cultural considerations that have played into the rise of the crystal meth—sex connection in gay male subcultures and make recommendations for gay-affirming treatment that address both substance use and sexual issues in order to facilitate recovery.

Other Notes:

- People in recovery often struggle with the compulsive thoughts and behaviors that are still programmed into the addictive limbic part of the brain. The compulsiveness often plays out thoughtlessly in interactions with others, damaging relationships and growth as balanced human beings. The time-tested are an intensive set of psycho-emotional-social-spiritual Cogitative Behavioral Therapy (CBT) interventions that include: standing still in the moment, giving up the need to control, not assuming another's intentions, tolerating differences, accepting emotions without giving them free reign, and differentiating between immediate fear-driven reactions and measured thoughts. By incorporating these techniques into one’s daily interactions and lifestyle, relationships can move from those of conflict to mutual respect and understanding.
The Science of Recovery: Advanced Seminar
C.C. Nuckols, PhD

Neurobiology and neuropsychology are teaching us more and more about addiction. This understanding is revealing new aids for recovery, as well as, confirming traditional approaches. This skills-building seminar will give participants state-of-the-art understanding of addiction and how this understanding shapes an evidence-based approach to clinical care. This is an advanced skill-training presentation integrating neurobiology, psychotherapy, pharmacotherapy, and spiritual approaches to recovery. The goal is to give patients the best possible tools for successful personal recovery. The clinician as neuroplastician will be the focus of this advanced seminar on recovery.

Co-Occurring Disorders
Gerry Schmidt, MA, MAC, LPC

Co-occurring disorders are not uncommon in clients seeking treatment for substance use disorders. In fact, 50 to 75 percent of all clients who are receiving treatment for a substance use disorder also have another diagnosable mental health disorder. Further, of all psychiatric clients with a mental health disorder, 25 to 50 percent of them also currently have or had a substance use disorder at some point in their lives. These individuals are in need of specialized addiction treatment, as well as mental health services. Recognition of the presence of co-occurring disorders has been growing over the past decade, as has the need for appropriate education and skill building in this area. This educational program was designed to meet this need.

Teklemariam has a Master’s degree in Clinical Counseling from Columbia International University and a Bachelor’s degree in Pastoral Ministries & Counseling from Toccoa Falls College. Previously, he worked at Richland School District Two in Columbia, S.C., as a Family Intervention Specialist. He also worked as a private practitioner providing individual and family counseling to those struggling with various mental health and addictive disorders. Teklemariam specializes in trauma-specific treatment, diagnosis and assessment, and Cognitive-Behavioral Interventions for Substance Abuse (CBI-SA).

Joe Terhaar, PhD, has been in practice since 1978, as a licensed marriage and family therapist, mental health counselor, career chemical dependency counselor, and Certified Intervention Professional. He uses nine strategies of family intervention, including a family-centered addiction recovery process facilitating the drug user and family healing together. A college instructor of the neurobiology of addiction, he executive produced the Neurobiology of Addiction, a video playable on any DVD format (TV or computer). It offers the traditional full-run 2-hour version, but also the more powerful menu-driven disk with average 20-minute segments for each drug category. Ideal for individual, family, or family intervention preparation sessions, it enhances comprehension of the drug-specific neurobiological trap, uniting the family and impressing the necessity for abstinence, guiding and motivating behavior change.

Christine Terry, PhD, is a licensed psychologist in private practice at Seattle Psychology, PLLC. In her clinical practice, she treats individuals and family members of loved ones with addictions or co-occurring disorders. She has training and experience in evidence-based approaches, specifically Cognitive Behavioral Therapies, for addictions and other mental health conditions. In addition to treatment, Dr. Terry provides consultation to professionals on CBT approaches to addiction treatment, conducts research on stigma about substance use, and is a frequent contributor to the Sober Families (www.soberfamilies.com) website, a website designed to help families with addicted loved ones.

Denise Tordella, MA, LPC, is a licensed professional counselor in Alexandria, VA, whose area of clinical specialization is integrated, trauma-informed, mental health treatment and substance abuse treatment. She is a workshop presenter who provides training and consultation to universities, non-profit and municipal mental health treatment service providers on the local and national level. She has taken post-graduate training that includes Eye Movement Desensitization and Reprocessing (EMDR) and Sensorimotor Psychotherapy. Her recent clinical focus has been to include mindfulness and body-oriented therapies to support individuals in managing the neurobiological effects of trauma, including emotional dysregulation and dissociation. Tordella was selected by her peers as one of the Top 200 Therapists in Washington, DC, and can be reached via her website at www.denisetordella.com.
Ivette Torres, MEd, MSC, joined the Center for Substance Abuse Treatment (CSAT), Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) in the fall of 1997. Ms. Torres oversees the CSAT team responsible for generating and disseminating mental and substance use disorder treatment and recovery best practices to SAMHSA’s mission-related constituents. She develops national public health education strategies and campaigns including the observance of the National Alcohol and Drug Recovery Month, celebrated each September.

Michael J. Wagner, LICSW, MAC, is a national trainer, educator, and consultant. He is licensed by WA State as a Licensed Independent Clinical Social Worker, and nationally certified by NAADAC as a Master Addiction Counselor. As an educator, he teaches addiction courses at Edmonds Community College. Wagner is Past-chair of NAADAC’s Ethics Committee, Past-president of CDPWS, past Vice-president of WACASE, and has varied experience on other volunteer boards. He is a NAADAC Approved Education Provider, #307.

James R. Ward, MSW, LCSW, LAC, ADS, currently works as the Director of Substance Abuse Treatment for Steel City Consultants in Pueblo, CO. His Master’s degree in Social Work is from the University of North Dakota and in 2013 he was one of the first non-medical providers trained and certified to provide AcuDetox in the state of Colorado. He has worked in both the inpatient and outpatient treatment specializing in treating co-occurring disorders and is currently working to bring AcuDetox to the outpatient providers of Colorado.

Paula Winnier is an enrolled member of the Confederated Tribes and Bands of the Yakama Nation located in Central Washington. She is a certified through the state of Washington as a Chemical Dependency Professional (CDP). Her experience extends over a 20 year period working in the Drug and Alcohol field providing clean and sober support to the Yakama Valley area. In recent years, she left to the Drug and Alcohol field to work in a different capacity of prevention, HIV/AIDS, and Sexually Transmitted diseases. Her experience has led her to her current position as a Problem Gambling Trainee Professional (GBTP) which she began on September 26, 2013. Her job entails managing the Problem Gambling Awareness and prevention program for her community.

Jeff Zacharias, LCSW, CAADC, BRI-I, CSAT Candidate, is the Clinical Director of New Hope Recovery Center in Chicago and maintains a private practice there. His areas of interest include working with the LGBTQI community, all forms of addictions, severe and persistent mental health issues and trauma and its impact on recovery. He is a member of NASW, NALGAP and NAADAC and currently serves on the Board of Directors for NALGAP. Additionally, he is a Board Member for Bonaventure House in Chicago which provides services to individuals living with AIDS. He has spoken on issues related to addiction and the LGBTQI community most notably at NCAD, NAADAC, NASW Illinois, the NASW National Conference and the NAMI National Conference.

NIATx was formerly the acronym for the Network for the Improvement of Addiction Treatment. Now, we’re known simply as NIATx. This reflects our growth and expansion into fields other than addiction treatment. NIATx facilitates peer networking and provides research, case studies, and innovative tools that encourage use of our process improvement model. This model is quality-driven, customer-centered, and outcome-focused, and has proven effective in transforming members’ business practices and the quality of care their clients receive.

ReSTART Life

reSTART is the first organization of its kind to open in the United States to address Internet Use and Gaming Disorder. The reSTART Life Program was developed to address a growing need for services dedicated to problematic computer, cell phone, and video game use. Prior to its inception, the only help available to excessive users was outpatient therapy, treatment in a chemical dependency program, or an expensive stay in a mental health treatment facility. Our mission is to help young adults and families of all ages lead healthy, sustainable lives by spending time away from computers, developing a plan focused on balanced media use, achieving academic success, finding employment, achieving health through fitness and nutrition, improving family relationships, connecting with nature and learning needed skills.

SAMHSA
www.samhsa.gov
The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) was established in 1992 and directed by Congress to target effectively substance abuse and mental health services to the people most in need and to translate research in these areas more effectively and more rapidly into the general health care system. Over the years SAMHSA has demonstrated that—prevention works, treatment is effective, and people recover from mental and substance use disorders. Behavioral health services improve health status and reduce health care and other costs to society. Continued improvement in the delivery and financing of prevention, treatment and recovery support services provides a cost-effective opportunity to advance and protect the Nation’s health.
